The following letter in regard to the big Kentucky Good Roads Association meeting to be held in Louisville March 27 has been received in this office and will be of interest to the local public as a number are planning to attend the meeting:

Editor Daily News, Middlesboro, Ky.
Dear Sir:

The Kentucky Good Roads Association, the Board of Trade of Louisville and other Civic organizations of the State will hold at the Seelbach Hotel, Louisville, on the morning and afternoon of March 27th, a convention to which are invited as delegates leading representatives of the press, financial, agricultural, educational and business interests of the State.

The convention will be addressed by one or more strong men from other states. Its value will be determined by the decision reached by the representatives there assembled.

We sincerely hope you can make one of that number and you are asked to bring with you such other business men of your city and county as are interested in solution of the state's road problem. Yours very truly, Robt. J. McBryde, Pres.

J. W. CARTER PURPORTS TO HAVE DIVERSIFIED ARRAY QUEER RELICS

A tasse from the coat of a wild man captured on the island of Juan Fernandez, the isle where Robinson Crusoe is reported to have endured three decades of exile, is in the possession of J. W. Carter of this city. The relic forcibly recalls to our minds the favorite tale of our youthful days. The wild man who, for some unaccountable reason, was enduring the solitude of the island as Crusoe is reported to have done, was captured by a party of men in which was the son of Mr. Carter.

Being a lover of relics and antiques Mr. Carter has a large and varied collection of geological formations, old documents, Indian relics and old money. He never loses an opportunity to add to his collection and he knows the history of each of the articles.

Among the fossils are some crinoid and other pertified forms of animal life that existed during the earlier ages.

These were found on the high mountain tops and had lived in the age when the mountain tops had been the bottom of the sea. Fossilized mussel and oyster shells, and other crustaceans are common in his collection. Among the interesting documents are some receipts issued by the Adams Express company in 1848, a time when the company was owned and principally operated by four men.

The Indian relics comprise a varied collection of arrow heads and beads. He has money from nearly every nation. One coin of particular interest is made of iron and is said to have been used by the Indians.

DERBY NOMINATIONS BREAK RECORDS

One Hundred and Forty-five Entries in Kentucky Classic to Be Run May 19

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 9.—One hundred two coldts, 22 fillies and 21 geldings, a total of 145, have been nominated for the forty-ninth renewal of teh Kentucky Derby, America's oldest racing fixture, whcih will be run at Churchill Downs, Louisville, May 19.

Never before, since it has become a late closing event, have owners of so many thoroughbreds signified their intention of contesting for the turf classic with its prize of $50,000 in added money.

The Harry Payne Whitney family of New York leads the list with eleven. Mrs. Whitney alone has seven and her husband four. Mr. Whitney has the distinction of having owned "Regret", the only filly which ever flashed first under the wire—in 1915—in a Kentucky Derby. E. R. Bradley, 1921 winner with "Behave Yourself" and H. F. Sinclair, each has seven nominees, J. S. Cosden five, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, four and Willis Sharpe Kilmer, whose "Exterminator" was first in 1918, has three with the same number for Montford Jones, who long has been a consistent Derby contender. Other notable turfmen represented are Benjamin Block, whose Morvich nosed out the field last year; August Belmont, Gallagher Brothers, Jefferson Livingston, Walter J. Salmon, E. B. McLean and J. K. L. Ross.

The largest previous number of nominations since the race has been a late showing event, was in 1920 when owners of 109 horses paid the nominating fee. Last year there were 92.

RARE FORM RAINBAW VISIBLE TODAY AS CIRCLE AROUND SUN

Many watery eyes and conditions of semi-blindness have resulted this afternoon from efforts to view the rainbow-like circles around the sun and to be first to learn the reasons thereof. In the early afternoon crowds could be seen standing on the streets bravely exposing their optics to the fierce glare Surprise and awe, not unmixed with fear, were depicted on many countenances. The large circle seemed to spread and other branches taking the forms of parts of circles seemed to radiate from it.

The circle was really a rare form of rainbow. The sun's rays, shining through the misty atmosphere formed the prismatic colors of the rainbow, according to B. H. Perkins, local weather man. This atmospheric condition is a very rare one, he says, having never, to his knowledge, occurred here before. It is not indicative of rain and is probably visitble only to this section of the state.

PRESBYTERIAN-BAPTIST S. S. GAME MONDAY NIGHT

Their fighting blood aroused over the game with the Christians Monday night, and flushed with the victory of that encounter, the Baptist Sunday school basketball team epect to walk away with the honors when they play the Presbyterians at the Booneway Inn at 8 o'clock Monday night. The taste of defeat is quite unknown to the opposing teams for, while each has defeated the Christians one time, they have never been arrayed against each other.

The game promises to be the best of the season for it is the first in which two undefeated teams have been scheduled to try for the championship. The Baptist lineup will be the same as that of last Monday night with the exception of Russ Hill who sacrificed an ankle on the altar of victory in the last game and will not be able to play this time. Their players include Smith Hatfield, Poore and Browning. The Presbyterian players will be Crain, Lewis, Callison, Hambright and McKinney.

S. B. GRAY'S SUDDEN DEATH LAST NIGHT

Former Middlesboro Grocer Dies in Virginia—Funeral Here 10 a. m. Tomorrow

Middlesboro residents were shocked today to learn of the death last night at his home in Tom's Creek, Va., of Samuel B. Gray, a former resident of this city. Mr. Gray died suddenly of heart failure late last night. His remains will be brought here tonight on No. 24 which arrives at 10:10 p. m. Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Hurst cemetery. The pastor of the Presbyterian church at Tom's Creek will come to conduct the services.

Mr. Gray's remains will be taken to the lodge rooms of the B. P. O. E. here, of which organization he was a charter member in Middlesboro. The body will be taken from there to the cemetery in the morning.

Mr. Gray came to Middlesboro in 1888 and lived here until eight years ago. He was in the grocery business here during this time, first in the firm Gray and Grimm, on Nineteenth street, then Walden and Gray on Cumberland Avenue. He was one of the most popular men, in business and in social life, who ever lived here, and his death has cast a gloom over the entire city.

The Gray family went from here to Mississippi where Mr. Gray was engaged in business. From there he went to Tom's Creek where he had since been as manager of the Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Co. commissary. Mr. Gray had seemingly been in perfect health. Mrs. Gray has been in delicate health for a number of years.

Mr. Gray is survived by his wife, one son, James and one daughter, Miss Pauline. The family will accompany the remains here.

This makes a new record for an amount in one day in this court. Fines ranged from $100 to $450. The Louisville Times today prints a story on bootleggers who say their operations are seriously inconvenienced by publicity and that those who receiv smaller fines are being shown leniency. GREER AFTER MOONSHINERS

Claiborne Sheriff Carries On Warfare as Federal Forces Ignore Aid Calls

TAZEWELL, Tenn., Mar. 9.—Sheriff A. J. Greer, assisted by Deputies G. H. Davis, Andy Baker, John Greer and Ben Greer, searched last week a house on Powell's river and found, in the basement, a complete copper still of large capacity, along with several barrels of beer. The pipe from the still extended through the first floor and entered a chimney. Nelson Peck, the reputed owner of the house fled with Pastel Peck, carrying four gallons of liquor in fruit jars, the officers said, the liquor being dropped as the officers pressed the chase. The two men crossed the river, forcing the officers to seek a crossing a half mile away.

Sheriff Green, accompanied by Deputies Andy Wilburn, Vernon Hayes, John Greer and Ben Greer, made a raid in the old Fifth district, finding, they reported, 150 gallons of beer in a dugout near a home. The still had been recently removed, the furnace being still warm. Several jars of liquor were found under a pile of leaves. no arrest was made.

Near a point where a revival was in progress, two and a half miles north of Tazewell, Sheriff Greer and his son, John Greer, searched the premises of Wesley Dunkin, finding in a basement, they said, a still which was yet hot, a run of whisky having just been made, all of which except a half gallon jar full having been carried away. Dunkin and his son, Ed, were arrested and arraigned before Justice of the Peace F. F. Overton, who bound them over to the next term of court under $500 bonds.

Sheriff Greer says that since he took office has asked aid of federal agents on a number of occasions, but that so far he has asked in vain, while assistance is being lent in Union and other counties. This has not discouraged Sheriff Greer, however, who says that he will wage the war as rapidly as possible without federal assistance.

A THOUGHT

Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles. —Prov. 21:23.

I regret often that I have spoken, never that I have been silent.—Publius Syrus.

DOES MIDDLESBORO HAVE A GOAL?

Cities are like individuals, they must have a goal if they are to grow. No man ever achieves without first planning carefully on a definite project. He must see where he is going, or he gropes, flounders, and finally falls without having succeeded.

We are told that Middlesboro has been practically asleep during the past six months. A hotel and school building have been secured of which we are proud, but our citizens are lapsing into a state of complacence and self-satisfaction that characterize retrogression rather than progress.

Already two months of a new year are gone, and what are the plans for a progressive Middlesboro during 1923 A few individual concerns are planning developments, but the city as an institution sleeps on, without a decisive and far-reaching plan for growth and improvement.

The city must have a goal for 1923; it must have a plan to which its citizens as a whole are completely committed; it must have some place to go, or it will pass a year of decadance and inactivity.

The proposal of a distinguished citizen of the city made before the Kiwanis Club recently should have earnest consideration. Why not set a definite goal, get active committees working on the plans, and see that these proposals come to pass? Not alone bring industries to Middlesboro which will furnish employment for men; not alone build more homes in the city to relieve the housing shortage but carefully and thoroughly work out plans in other, if smaller, lines of activity. Much can be done, and it must be done, if Middlesboro is to grow.

HERE'S 100 PER CENT AMERICAN TOWN!

We frequently read these days of one hundred per cent Americanism, and the stories of pure Americanism found in our mountains of the South. The latest story of this kind is found in an editorial in the Polk County News, of Benton, Tennessee. We reprint it in full, and we wager that no other county in the United States can boast of such a record.

Benton One Hundred Per Cent American

Wonder if it ever occurred to the Benton folks that they were living in a little city that is one hudred per cent American? Well, whether or not it has, nevertheless it is a fact.

Benton was founded in 1840,and at no time since that time, insofar as we have been able to find out, has there ever been a resident of the town that wasn't an American. Especially is this true of the Benton of today. There is not a Jew in the town; not a Frenchman; not a German; not an Italian; not a Japanese; not a Chinese; not a Negro nor of any other race other than pure one hundred per cent American.

Another thing. Every lawyer and physician in the town are natives of the town and county except one. All the county officers are native Tennesseans, and four out of the seven are natives of the county. Both the cashier and assistant cashier of the bank are natives of the county; the cashier being born and reared in Benton.Every business man in the town is a native of the county and the majority of them were born and reared in Benton.

There is not a real lazy man or woman in the town—a few have no particular business of their own to look after—but they are always ready and willing to help you attend to yours.

A nice, clean little city populated with eight hundred reasonably happy and contented people.

The city has electric lights, and has one among the best high schools in the State. Ninety-five per cent of the heads of families own and occupy their own property. And why shouldn't they be contented and happy?

Put these few scattering remarks away in your scrap book and when you take a blue spell and want to cuss out the town, get them out and read them.

If Pa Whooza ever heard of the Anderson Gum Stock company he doubtless thinks it is a firm that manufactures rifle butts.

Fellowship of Prayer

FRIDAY

Love Empowered by Prayer

"Teacher, I brought unto thee my son." Mark 9:17.

Read Mark 9:14-29.

"The crowning achievement of a man on earth is to make the word 'father' so rich in memories and associations that it brings God nearer to his children."

MEDITATION: Many modern parents are apt to be more anxious about their children's physical health, education, or even their place in society, than about their religious training.

HYMN:

Spirit of God, descend upon my heart;
Wean it from earth; though all its pulses move;
Stoop to my weakness, mighty as thou art,
And make me love thee as I ought to love.

PRAYER: O Heavenly Father, shed forth thy blessed spirit richly on all members of this household. Make each of us an instrument in thy hands for good. Purify our hearts, strengthen our minds and bodies, fill us with mutual love. Le no pride, no self-conceit, no rivalry, no dispute, ever spring up among us. Make us earnest and true, wise and prudent, giving no just cause for offense; and may thy holy peace rest upon us this day and every day, sweetening our trials, cheering us in our work, and keeping us faithful to theend; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

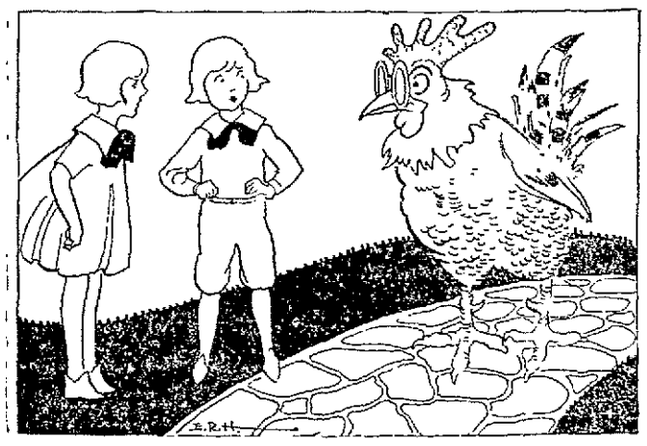
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



Nancy and Nick stood looking at Jack Straw's house spinning around on top of a steeple in Mix-Up Land.

That is the last place it had jumped to.

"I know what I'll do," cried Nick. "I'll break another of the eggs that the Cut-Out Lady gave us."

So he broke an egg.

Instantly a ladder appeared and as quickly hopped away toward the steeple, leaning itself up obligingly against the side.

"Hurry, Nancy. We'll climb it and get to Jack Straw's house," said Nick starting to run

'I suppose you know what you are doing, but I'd be careful if I were you,' said a voice.

There stood a purple rooster, looking at them through a huge pair of spectacles.

"Why?" asked Nancy.

"Because if Jack Straw sees you and turns his magic ring, the ladder will tumble about your ears and then where will you be?"

"I'll break another egg and see what happens," said Nick. So he broke another magic egg and out tumbled a feather-bed.

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!" crowed the rooster. "I wonder what kind of a hen laid those eggs? They surely ought to bring more than 60 cents a setting!"

"Now I know where we'll be if we fall!" cried Nancy. "On the feather bed! Come, Nick, lets hurry."

"But spose n," put in the rooster, "spos'n mean old Jack Straw turns his ring another time and a wind comes and blows all the feathers away."

"I'll break another egg and see," said Nick.

So he broke another egg, the last one. and what do you think!

There was only a piece of paper in it.

"Well I declare!" said the rooster "I guess our trouble will be over soon and Mix-Up land will be Apple-Pie Land again That's the very piece of paper Ive been searching for. It tells how to get rid of that rogue, Jack Straw."

ALABAMA RAIN
By Berton Braley

Montgomery, Ala.

Don't drive through Alabama, when it rains!
For the valleys and the hillocks and the plains.
Are a mire of sticky clay
Where you'll stay and stay and stay,
Getting deeper every moment for your pains.

Don't drive through Alabama in the rain!
Wait for sunny days, or travel on the train!
Though I do not care to slam a
Friendly state, still Alabama
Has the sort of roads no verses can explain.

Don't drive through Alabama in the rain!
For they tell me the asylum for insane
Has some people strolling through it
Who imagined they could do it
But are now entirely batty in the brain.

Don't drive through Alabama when it rains!
For the things they build for roads are only drains,
And the sturdiest of flivvers
Wasn't made for swimming rivers
Or exploring wholly bottomless terrains.

Don't drive through Alabama when it rains!
Though you put on double sets of heavy chains
You will sink in to a bog
Where a fat bull-throated frog
Croaks funereally over your remains.

Wait until the downpour finishes and wanes,
And the sky from further deluges refrains,
Otherwise you'll linger here
For the rest of your career,
Don't drive through Alabama when it rains!

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

As the letters fell apart in her lap, Kate recognized that all except the first one were in her own handwriting. Dan had kept every letter she had written to him during the short periods of their separation. The thought thrilled her. She knew from that how he must have cared.

She picked up the first envelope, the one addressed in his own scrawly handwriting to her.

It began simply, as his letters always did:

"DEAR KATHERYN:

"I know that some day, some how, you will learn of the girl called Alice. And I have the same faith that, in that hour, a kind fate, your foresight, intution—call it what you may—will lead you to this letter.

"My sin was that of indulgence, with another weakness. There is no need here for details of the girl's story. In fact, I do not know them myself. There is just this which matters to you and me—I was drunk, beastly drunk—while you were away on your summer vacation in 1920. When I sobered I found Alice with me. She told me of her two-and-a-half-year-old child, of her straitened circumstances. I supported her for one summer in my lodge in the woods—because it seemed to be the only thing to do.

"At such time as this letter falls into your hands, I shall have no further reason to lie to you—Alice never meant anything to me. I exacted nothing of her. I want you to know that and believe it, because I love you.

"You have raised my conception of womanhood to a pinnacle from which a thousand lesser women should be unable to drag it. And I have tried to be worthy of my conception—though I dared not aspire to worthiness of its creator."

The note was signed simply "Dan," as closed quite as abruptly as it began.

Kate was frankly crying when she finished reading. The few penned words had softened the crystalline surface which had seemed to glaze her whole being when she climbed out of the window that night, 12 years before, and took up her way along the open road.

She was singularly light-hearted until, with the passing of a car along the road, she was reminded of James Latham.

Tomorrow James Latham would come for his answer. Kate shrank from the thought.

MARCH

The stormy March is come at last,
With wind, and cloud, and changing skies;
I hear the rushing of the blast
That through the snowy valley flies.

Oh! passing few are they who speak,
Wild stormy month in praise of thee;
Yet though thy winds are loud and bleak,
Thou art a welcome month to me.

For thou to northern lands, again
The glad and glorious sun dost bring;
And thou hast joined the gentle train
And wear'st the gentle name of Spring.

Then sing aloud the gushing rills
In joy that they again are free,
And, brightly leaping down the hills,
Renew their journey to the sea.

Thou bring'st the hope of those skies,
And that soft time of sunny showers,
When the wide bloom, on earth that lies,
Seems of a brighter, world than ours.

—William Cullen Bryant.

"The Red Widow"

Playgoers of this city have been been looking forward to the visit of George Damerel and Myrtle Vail in the 1922 version of "The Red Widow" and this famous pair and more famous musical comedy success is now on its way. It will come to the Manring Theatre for one night Saturday, March 10th, with its complete cast of thirty musical comedy favorites with its comedy and musical features and famous Red Widow Chorus. In order to whet the appetite of lovers of things musical it may not be amiss to quote a few remarks made concerning this show by critics of the Philadelphia papers. The Ledger said "it was the best musical entertainment revealed in the last few years." The Journal said, "I don't know where you could find a more entertaining musical attraction; George Damerel is a remarkable performer in his role of Butts;" the News said "Laughter and applause vied for supremacy and the audience was strong for it every moment."

Another couple that shouldn't be given a divorce is bacon and eggs.

Spring always visits a few times before coming to stay.

"Sudden Service"

Simplicity speaks culture; extravagance is the voice of vulgarity. It's natural for the young woman to regard her wedding day as the most important of her life, and to wish to observe it accordingly. But in all arrangements, whether it be in the selection of the trousseau of plans for a church ceremony, she should remember that garish ostentation is extremely bad taste. Studied simplicity has more charm.

WEDDINGS

1: Wedding invitations should be issued not earlier than four weeks, nor later than two weeks, before the wedding ceremony.

2: The couple to be married should consult carefully together in making up the reception list.

3: The wedding reception must be given by the bride's family; never by the groom's family.

4: The bride's family bears all expenses of the wedding, except the cost of the marriage license, the bride's bouquet, the wedding ring, the clergyman's fee and gifts to the best man and ushers, which the groom pays.

5: The groom if wise will request the bride to select her own wedding ring; it's something which she must wear all her life.

It's bad manners for the groom, no matter how rich, to offer to contribute to the bride's family proper part of the wedding expenses.

New Millions Are Coming To Kentucky To Expand Your Telephone System

IN a previous advertisement we reviewed the records and plans of the Cumberland Telephone Company as a whole, showing that the development during 1922 in this section was tremendous and set new high records; that the total investment at the beginning of 1923 was more than $50,300,000 and that thousands of new telephones were added.

Kentucky's telephone growth last year also established new records and required the best efforts of a splendid organization

The gross additions to the telephone plant in Kentucky during 1922 amounted to $707,409.36 and 10,503 new telephones were installed. There were 7,290 discontinuances, leaving a net gain of 3,213 telephones.

There are 147 Cumberland exchanges in Kentucky with 55,781 telephones and connecting with 50,300 telephones of other companies in the state.

Approximately 365,000 local calls were handled daily in Kentucky and there were approximately 1,840,000 originating long distance calls during the year.

Kentucky's telephone system contains about 147,997 miles of wire of which 24,578 miles are used for long distance purposes, and there are 255,413 poles.

The telephone plant in Kentucky represents an investment of $9,636,725 and is built, maintained and operated by 796 employes whose annual pay roll is $1,114,745.

These workers all live in Kentucky and most of them are native born. They spend their wages here at home for food, clothing, rent, light, heat and taxes just as you spend your salary.

The plans for the growth and development of the telephone system in Kentucky for the next five years are such that the skill and energy of the telephone organization will be taxed to the utmost.

The magnitude of the plans may be imagined when it is stated that $4,645,000 of new money will be required in Kentucky alone during the next five years.

In this state it is estimated there will be a net growth of 13,578 new telephones during this period which will mean the installation of 53,818 new telephones and the discontinuance of 40,240 telephones.

This general expansion has already begun. The plans for this year have been made and the necessary capital arranged for, though much will depend upon the ability of the manufacturers to deliver the equipment and material.

The growth of the telephone system in Kentucky during 1923 will require $1,115,100 in new money to pay for work which must be done in all sections of the state.

It is estimated that during this year 10,698 new telephones will be installed, 7,571 discontinued, making a net gain of 3,127 telephones for the year.

This accomplishment will give Kentucky a total of more than 58,659 telephones.

The telephone workers in Kentucky approach their big task cheerfully, confident of accomplishing it to your satisfaction.

They are encouraged by your evidence of good will in the fair treatment you have accorded their company and the consideration you have displayed in time of difficulty.

With Any Old Frock and Deauville Scarf You Will Be in Style

By Marion Hale

The most distinctive novelty of the season—of a good many seasons, in fact—is the colorful Deauville scarf

Deauville, as you doubtless know, is the great French summer resort—one of the gayest, one of the most expensive, one of the most fashionable in Europe.

It was at Deauville, you may remember, that King Alfonso of Spain spent a lot of time last season dancing with any number of pretty girls, giving an expensive brooch to each of those he favored thus—making himself so popular, indeed, that this year his advisers said they'd rather he stayed at home—his cutting around has attracted too much attention.

For Sports Wear

Anyway, the Deauville scarf first appeared at this famed resort—originally intended for sports wear.

But it was too much of a success to be limited, in its activities, to any time, place of style of frock, and today it's featured in connection with evening gowns, afternoon attire, house dresses and even kimonos

It's added pep and dash to the dull costumes women had accepted for business wear nd its relieved the deadly monotony of the collarless neckline.

Naturally there is bound to be variations, so it isn't surprising to find ribbon being used decoratively in a manner which the scarf plainly inspired.

Save Your Frock

The photographs will give you suggestions that may enable you to save the old frock you'd intended to discard, evolving a snappy Easter costume from it instead, by the purchase of a few yards of ribbon and the expenditure of a little ingenuity.

To make the ribbon fichu (lower right) you need three yards of taffeta ribbon, preferably figured doubled over with a loop knot in thevery center and then the doubled pieces stitched together for half a yard, then knotted again. One end is drawn together through the loop knot and the other's used to make the bow or knot that ties it.

At the upper left is shown an adjustable drapery that may be used about the neck or hips, as you please. To make it, two pieces of ribbon are mitered to make a corner—one piece about a yard long with a double knot or loop in it through which the other end, about three fourths of a yard, slips.

Fore And Aft

The upper right and lower left are fore and aft views of the same arrangement of the scarf. Four pieces of wide ribbon are mitered together by double hemstitching or faggoting. The opening formed by the pieces must be large enough to slip easily over thehe ad. Once on, the scarf may be worn as a square or it can be pulled around so that one point comes down in front, with both shoulders and the back adorned with the other points The shoulder points may be knotted or only one point tied. The clever girl can make her own adjustments.

TUT GETTING IN HIS WORK ON FASHIONS

Egyptian fashions, which have been sharing popularity with those from Persia and Ukrainia, will take the lead now.

King Tutankhamen deserves all the credit. What matter that he's been dead some thousands of years! He's to be a powerful influence all the same in the dictation of spring and summer styles.

This influence will be visible mostly in colors and designs of popular printed fabrics—chiffons, silks, silk crepes, cottons, linens, even wool jerseys.

And the gayer the designs, the more popular the goods.

Lace Frills

The lace frill about the neck and cuffs is one of the features of this season's frock. It is of the most flattering styles ever invented and will give distinction to the simplest attire.

Elaborate Sashes

Gowns of the utmost simplicity are transformed into distinctive creations by the clever manipulations of the new scarfs, in gorgeous colors, which are used as sashes, sleeve draperies and other adornments.
